

How to engage with people who have a learning disability or autism, around sex, relationships and sexual health

A training for professionals, parents and carers

At Diverse we aim for inclusivity and equality in everything we do, and we want everyone to have the opportunity to be equipped to make informed choices and decisions around sexual health, consensual and pleasurable sexual activity, healthy relationships and personal safety.

With almost 10 years experience of supporting people who have a learning disability or autism to make informed choices about their relationships, sex and sexual health we have recently designed a training for professionals, parents and carers. This training aims to equip participants with the skills, knowledge and tools to communicate effectively with the people they work with and care for, around relationships, sex, sexual health and keeping safe online and in the community.

The dates below are offered as part of our pilot for this training at a nominal charge of £10 p.p. to cover our admin costs in exchange for your feedback on e.g., content and timings. Please note that post pilot the cost of this training will be in the region of £60 p.p.
